SU LEADERSHIP ELECTIONS 2020

CAMPAIGN TO WIN

Your Guide to Running a Successful Campaign

Introduction

Every year, during the elections period, we are always amazed by the innovative and unusual ways that candidates chose to campaign for the votes of their fellow students. This guide will give you some great tips on how to build the most effective campaign possible.

It's important to point out that you don't need to do absolutely everything in this guide to win (although the more you do will obviously help), and there are obviously things not included because well, we haven't thought of them yet. Every candidate has the same small budget but it is important to note that each year the successful candidates are those who focus on the most effective methods – are creative and go out and talk to as many students as possible. Talk to any previous candidates and they will tell you that election campaigns are a great experience where, win or lose, you will make friends, meet people you would never normally come into contact with and develop skills you never thought you would and most importantly have fun!.

How Do Elections Work?

Whether you are standing yourself or a member of a candidate's campaign team, take the time to read through all the key documents. Make sure you understand how the elections will work and know all the key deadlines, processes and rules. You can find all this information in two key documents:

- The Leadership Elections Guide
- The Election Rules

Both can be found in the Elections Candidate Information Hub at <http://www.worcsu.com/yourvoice/elections/hub/>

If you aren't sure you can always contact Tim Hewes-Belton our Student Engagement Manager at t.hewesbelton@worc.ac.uk or 01905 543222.

Planning Your Campaign

Why Are You Standing?

The first thing you should do is to set aside a few hours to think about why you want to run, what you would do for students and how you plan on conveying that message. These ideas, what you want to change, should then be fleshed out into your manifesto. Your next step should be to contact a couple of close friends to run your ideas by them, and to try and develop a clear message and brand for your campaign. In the early planning stages, try to keep these meetings to just a few people as you don't want to over complicate your ideas.

Who Are You Representing?

Most importantly you should consider the students you hope to represent – after all this is why you are running for election. Remember, people's experiences at University can vary because of social, cultural and other differences. So think about issues that will be common to everyone regardless of their background.

A good starting point is the one thing you have in common: you are all at university to get a degree and further your education. You can then start thinking about a broader range of issues that affect different people – running ideas past specific groups if you're unsure about something. A great way of doing this is to go along to student groups meetings, and ask them directly about what they'd like to change. Make sure you think about the role you want to go for and what is important to that area of the Union's work.

What Are Your Key Policies?

Having thought about the different types of students you will be representing, and the issues that affect them most, you should try and shape these into your key policies for your campaign. These policies should be what you put on your posters, what you put on your leaflets and will form talking points when you're out on campus talking to students. A good number to aim for is four or five that you think are a) the most important, and b) most appealing to students. The more original or creative these are, the more you'll set yourself apart from the other candidates, and therefore more recognisable your campaign will be. You need to tread the line between populism (what students want) and what is achievable in a year. Remember, you do have your full manifesto online where you can develop these ideas further, so try and keep them short and snappy. Finally, if you're in doubt about whether you are able to campaign on something, ask yourself two questions: a) Does it affect the students I'm running to represent? b) Have I got an idea how to solve or improve it?

Your Campaign Message

A key element to any successful campaign is the publicity behind it – how you tell students about your ideas and persuade them to vote for you.

Campaign Theme

Many students choose a campaign theme that is linked to their name or something that they think will appeal to students. You can see some examples from other Students' Unions in the pictures to the right with a Super girl theme and one based on the candidates name "Daisy". It doesn't have to be fun though you can also have more serious themes based around a specific policy or idea. (Don't forget you can't use ducks or superheroes this year).

Campaign Colour

This sounds like a simple decision, but you want to choose something that will really stand out and draw people's attention to your campaign. In the past, people have picked colours that link with their name, or campaign ideas.

HULK for AU

Campaign Slogan(s)

Many students decide that they want to have a slogan that students can remember them by. Think about slogans used by political parties and political figures, such as Obama's 2008 'yes we can'. This was effective as it made a clear link to what people wanted, and was simple enough to be repeated time and again. Another popular choice is to link your slogan to your name, which will help with recognition when students vote. If you think hard enough, almost any name can be made into a slogan. Examples from Worcester and further afield include:

- Hemaka Pathiranga: It's Hemi Time #hemitime (Worcester)
- Mini Zhou: Vote Mini, Get Max (Liverpool)
- Amy Horner: #superhorner (Derby)
- Bryn: Vote #1 The Bryncredible Hulk (Cardiff)

Your Manifesto

Your manifesto should be the basis of your campaign and is basically a document which lets voters know a little bit about you and what you stand for. It is in your manifesto is your tool for delivering your campaign message and lay out why students should vote for you! Writing an election manifesto needn't be something to tear your hair out about. Essentially, your manifesto should state what you would plan to do in your time of office, and what changes you would make.

Example Manifestos

Vote #1 Lisa Cooke
For Vice President Education

Hi, I'm Lisa and I'm standing to be your Vice President Education for the coming year. I've been a student and have plenty of my first year of experience in Business & Economics.

For not exactly political, but I believe it is really important that we have someone who is dedicated to representing students in students throughout their academic lives.

All too often, the focus on making our courses and teaching better can be over-shadowed by the more 'fun' aspects of being a student. Each one and I'll make sure that we have great academic experience as well as a lot of fun!

Vote at <http://pegasus.wor.ac.uk> from Mon 19th March 10am - Tues 20th March 5pm

Why you should vote for me...

- Your Studies
Studying this is not fun, I know you are all here. That's one and I will work hard to make sure your studies are based on every level. We need to work together to make this University work!
- Your Library
Read as much as you can in this library as it helps you learn. But it's not just about reading, it's about the library to make the University for better studies.
- Your Feedback
We've all been there - thinking your year is not so great, maybe the last year of your course was great, only to be told in your first year of feedback that you're not so great. I will campaign for an improved level of feedback for EVERY year of your course.

#1 Lisa Cooke
"Speaking up for students"
19.03.12

Hey everyone!

I'm Jade and I'm your current Students' Union President. It has been an honour and privilege to have been in this position and I have truly loved every minute of it! I've almost accomplished my manifesto aims with the remainder being completed as we speak. So far some key things I have achieved are helping to organise the housing fair with over 600 students attending, ran campaigns on Mental Health and got gender neutral toilet signs in all University sites!

If re-elected I aim to:

- Continue working on housing and try to develop better relationships with landlords
- Continue working on increasing our engagement with our diverse student body to ensure we are inclusive and representative
- Ensure there is suitable social space and facilities at city campus
- Support campaigns around Sexual Health and work with the GP service on campus
- Ensure all early starters (paramedics, nurses, teachers etc.) have an amazing welcome which I feel they currently don't get compared to other students
- Take my employability work to the next level introducing a resource hub with interactive sessions

I'm voting for JADE

This year has been an amazing opportunity but I would love to continue and give students more. I want every student to have a great experience whilst they are at Worcester and I will do my very best to ensure this is the case.

RE-ELECT YOUR SAVING GRACE

Microwaves and Kettles on Campus.
It is reasonable for students to want to bring their own food into the University and heat it up. Buying hot food regularly can be expensive and unrealistic on a student budget. If re-elected, I would negotiate with the University to allow for these facilities to be put in place on campus.

Holding the University to Account on Your Tuition Fees.
We all know tuition fees are expensive, but what does the money go on? If re-elected, I would work alongside the University to ensure this was transparent, and that students were getting the best deal possible. This could be in the form of bonuses or extra resources. In fact, I want you to get in touch with any ideas you have!

A Brand New Students' Union.
We would like to see the Students' Union revitalised, with our services brought closer to student residences in the city centre. Could this be a brand new 'SU building'? A new media studio or a library book collection point? On all of the above? If re-elected, I would work hard to make this space a reality, consulting you on what you want from us at every step.

Some top tips for writing your manifesto:

- Graphically design it if you want to, it will look more inviting. If you want to upload one of these please send it to a.banner@worc.ac.uk before the deadline together with a text copy (Microsoft Word doc please)
Be concise and use clear language. Avoid long, complicated words – you won't win awards for being clever and you might just alienate important voters.
- Use bullet points, rather than long sentences – you need to try to get your message across in a short, snappy way
- Set out your goals (we suggest no more than 3 or 4) for your time in office. Be realistic. Don't make wild claims about what you will do – if you're not sure if any of your ideas are feasible, talk to SU staff before you put your manifesto together.
- Your manifesto is about you and not about your opponents. Avoid discrediting and disrespecting others as it is not professional and ultimately it could lead to a libel lawsuit!
- Be relevant. There's not much point telling everyone you like cute bunny rabbits when you're standing for Vice President Education. However, instances where you have shown leadership, tenacity, and tact would indicate to voters your suitability for the role.
- You may want to mention previous experience which you think is relevant (perhaps you've been a Course Rep or a committee member, for instance)
- Keep it to a maximum of 250 words. They are the rules, and, after all, voters will want to read what you have to say and are likely to give up if you write the equivalent of 'War and Peace'. Be succinct your manifesto will be cut off if you exceed 250 words.
- Check your spelling and grammar (or ask someone else to) – you want your manifesto to look professional.
- Be creative and inspiring. However, there are rules so make sure that you are not overstepping the mark. You may, if you want to, include a slogan for your campaign.

Manifestos will be available on the SU website and we'll produce standardised promotional material showing all of the candidates. Photographs of all candidates will be taken at the Candidates' Briefing and these will be used in promotional material which will be produced by the SU.

Your Campaign Publicity

In all your publicity, encourage people to vote you number 1 (or if not put you as their second choice). Second or even third or fourth preferences really can make the difference between winning and losing!

Posters

The first thing you should think about is the design – to make it eye catching and distinct. Look at ideas from famous advertising campaigns, magazines and the television for some inspiration. During the campaign weeks there will be posters all around campus, and because of this it's very easy for students to miss them (it's called poster blindness). Try and make yours stand out – through comedy, colour, shape or size. Your posters should have your name, a photo, your key policies, details of how to vote, and any slogans you're using on them. A lot of candidates use phrases like "Vote me your #1" highlighting the need to rank candidates.

You need to think about where you put your posters up to have the maximum impact on students. The Students' Union will provide you with a number of candidates' boards that you can place posters on in the Students' Union building but it is also important to spread the word in the wider University. Academic departments, halls and bus stops are a good place to start. However, you must keep to the notice boards and if someone asks you to move or take posters down then please cooperate with them. Always ask permission before sticking posters on notice boards (that are not official candidates' boards). It's also important to be considerate to other candidates, so try not to hog all the space in high profile places. If you wish to put posters in halls make sure that you do not enter illegally and if you are able to gain permission then please use the notice boards only.

Bed Sheets in SU

The Students' Union will provide you with a bedsheet to turn in to a banner to hang in the Hangar (Leadership Elections only). Try to be inventive, make sure you include your name, the position you are going for any slogans you may have. Make sure it is readable and will stand out from the crowd.

Leaflets

Leaflets work really well here at Worcester where there are limited places to put up posters. Like your posters, these should stand out and look appealing to students. Put the same information about voting, as well as your contact information on them. If you're using double sided leaflets, use one side for an eye catching design and the second for more detail about your policies (maybe even a copy of your beautifully designed manifesto).

Stickers

Stickers usually end up stuck on floors and walls, and are a real pain to remove. They are not allowed on campus. They can, however, be really effective when out campaigning during student nights in the city. Keep them as simple as possible, with something as basic as “I’m voting for...”, and shop around to make sure you get the best value for money. This type of activity gives a campaign momentum, raising the profile of your ideas and the election in general.

T-shirts

T-shirts are an excellent way of having your supporters promote your campaign even when they are not actually out campaigning, and they will make your campaign easily identifiable. A cheap way to do this is to buy plain t-shirts and iron on transfer paper. (Home-decorated t-shirts have a cost of £2 on your budget sheet)

Video

Making a video can be a great way on interacting with students who don’t go onto campus very often or who wouldn’t read a leaflet. You can make your video serious with you talking about your policies, or you can make a spoof video that you think will appeal to students and maybe go viral. Previously, students have chosen to act out scenes from films, sing songs or change the words of rap songs to make them relevant to their campaign. Upload them to Youtube or Vimeo and share as much as possible (a simple search on either of these will give you some good examples from past years too).

Examples of videos:

- Vote Landy for Activities (Leeds) <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YpcAfKdVRLM>

- Tom Van Wesseldine for President (Nottingham) <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=wOcsloGlxws>

Songs

In the past, some candidates have also looked to music to help support their campaign – ranging from re writing song lyrics of popular tunes, to original composed pieces. It’s a great way of injecting a bit of fun, and drawing attention to your supporters.

Facebook

Setting up a Facebook group or page can be an excellent way to get your supporters to show their support for you, and to help raise the profile of your campaign online. You can publish your full manifesto, post updates on what you are doing and encourage people to vote for you. Don’t overdo it though - as a general rule, try and limit yourself to one (maybe 2) Facebook update(s) per day reminding people to vote for you. Sharing photos is a great way to spread the word too.

Using a Facebook ad can be effective as it is targeted publicity. You can change the settings to only advertise your Facebook group or page to current students at your University.

Be aware that it takes time to build up a following so make sure you get some Facebook content for the SU social media takeover (More info on the social media takeover will be sent to you by our marketing team).

Twitter

Using Twitter is also a very good way of communicating with potential voters, especially if you use the relevant hashtags when tweeting about the elections. Again, photos are a great way of engaging students. Twitter is more time responsive so feel free to tweet every couple of hours.

Instagram

Students are using Instagram more and more so a few cool pictures laying out your manifesto or at least some key points is a great way to go.

Email Address

It is advisable to set up an email address specifically for the election that students are able to contact you on. This way you can keep your personal accounts separate, and can easily contact those voters with questions or queries. It is obviously not essential, but it can be a nice way of allowing students to be in touch with you throughout the campaign.

How to Campaign

Campaign Team

One of the most important elements of any campaign's success is to have a good group of campaigners who will help you distribute fliers, put up posters and generally spread the word about your campaign. We recommend that you have at 3 to 5 students joining you in active campaigning at any one time as it is enough to make you visible but not so many so that you bombard people. Remember that your campaign team are bound by the same rules as you and you will be penalised if they break the rules!

To help you we will run training for your campaign teams at the same time as the candidate briefing. Additionally, if you can, try and hold a training session where you familiarise your team with your policies, tell them how you would like them to campaign, make sure they understand the rules if they missed our session. This is also a great opportunity to talk about some of the benefits they'll get from participating, particularly related to employability after graduation. The best way of ensuring students vote for you is to talk to them, not just hand them a flyer, so really stress this as much as possible.

Good people to ask to campaign for you are friends from your halls or accommodation, friends from your course or society but they should all be students here at Worcester. Take some time in putting together some kind of rota if possible, so you know how much to expect from friends in terms of time commitment. Remember though, these people are doing you a huge favour and will have other time commitments, so don't take it personally if they can't give as much time as you'd like.

Make sure you keep them refreshed with regular breaks and maybe even some food and drink – a little gesture like this goes a long way. Everyone gets a bit stressed out during elections, so if you feel that this is happening to you, tell your campaign team that you're going to campaign elsewhere and take half an hour to reenergise and refocus. Never let yourself get to the stage where you are grumpy with voters or your campaign team, it's completely normal, just have a cup of tea and calm down.

Finally, make sure you use your team effectively. Have regular meetings keeping people updated on what's happened, and spread people out around campus rather than just outside main buildings. It's also worth stressing the importance of them not grouping together and simply talking to each other – you want them to be engaging with students who have yet to be persuaded to vote for you yet.

Election week timetable

Get one of these written up, prior to the start of elections, for you and your campaign team. This gives everyone an idea of what they should be doing and ensures that the key places, like ballot boxes, are covered.

Talking to Students

When talking to students, try and be brief and to the point - but make sure you tell them something they will remember. A good icebreaker is to introduce yourself, and then ask them a couple of questions before you start to talk about yourself and your ideas. Focus on the changes you are proposing that are relevant to them – remember elections are about the voters. Remember to remind students that they should vote in order of preference and if you aren't their first choice ask them to consider putting you in second.

Lecture Shout Outs

Doing lecture shout outs are an extremely important part of campaigning. For a minute or two you have access to up to 200 students, all in one place, ready to listen to you. Like quite a lot of aspects of running an election campaign, it can seem very daunting to walk into a huge lecture theatre of unfamiliar faces, so start practising on your own lectures where you'll know some of the students there. Try and arrive at least 15 minutes before the start in order to ask permission from the lecturer, and try and keep your pitch down to a minute – audience participation is great when it works, but can be tricky at 9am.

Using Sweets

Many candidates choose to give out sweets during election time to lure students into talking to them. They can also be a nice way of starting a conversation with a potential voter; however, they are not essential and are, ultimately, an added expense.

Flash mob

In the past, some candidates have chosen to do a flash mob on campus to attract attention during a busy period of voting. There has been singing, dancing and acting, all of which went down very well with students and drew attention to the respective candidates

Campaign Launch Party

Having a launch party on the first night of voting can often be a very good idea. Invite your friends, their friends and get people along to celebrate the launch of your campaign. Lots of bars have space for small private functions that is free to hire and it will help your campaign gain momentum.

Where to Campaign

Campaigning In Halls of Residences

Halls are a fantastic place to campaign in the evenings once campus has gone quiet and students have left for the day. Be mindful that these are students' homes though, and make sure you are polite and ask permission if you're poster in kitchens etc.

Campaigning at the Bus Queues

Bus queues are a perfect place for you to catch students with five minutes free to talk. You will often find lots of students waiting around and they will usually be more than willing to talk for a couple of minutes. Fliers are also great as they'll have time to read them during their journey.

Campaigning at Student Events

In the run up to the election many candidates will choose to attend student events to try and gain support from the society and its members. Societies don't usually mind this, however, you should speak to the President of the society prior to going along to check if it is ok to attend in this capacity.

Campaigning during Nights Out

Campaigning during nights out can be effective at raising the profile of your campaign, especially if you get your campaign team dressed up to attract attention. Be careful not to annoy students who may be taking a break from their studies though, and remember too many late nights will negatively affect your capacity to campaign during the day.

Campaigning at all Sites and Campuses

Whichever site you study at don't forget to go and visit all the University campuses: St John's, City Campus, Jenny Lind, Riverside and the Garage. Many of your potential voters don't visit campuses that they don't study at and getting their votes could be the difference between winning and losing. Students at satellite campuses can feel left out from all the action at the main campus so making them feel included could really work in your favour!

Campaign Dos and Don'ts

Here are some general Do's and Don'ts (more specific rules can be found in the Election Rules Document)

DO...

Do go out and talk to students

Do enjoy it as much as possible

Do be aware that students get very fed up of the constant hassle of electioneering very quickly; think of different and exciting ways to campaign

Do remember to eat and remember to take regular breaks – the same should go for your campaigners

Do be able to sum up why a person should vote for you in 30 seconds

Do be creative and make things

Do make a fun and entertaining video

Do use social media to promote your campaign

Do make sure you do lots of lecture shout outs

Do plan early

Do have a clear message

Do keep your best campaign ideas secret until you actually start using them

Do take lots of campaign photos by which to remember the campaign you've run.

DON'T...

Don't decide not to run because you are afraid you won't get elected. In the words of the famous American baseball player Babe Ruth 'don't let the fear of striking out keep you from playing the game'

Don't spend too much money, especially not on sweets

Don't go overboard with your publicity; a few posters in each building are more than enough

Don't overwork yourself and your campaign team

Don't be put off if one student is disinterested or rude to you, the majority will be interested

Don't be unfair to other candidates by taking their posters down or negatively campaigning

Don't promise things that you can't achieve

Don't litter your city – remember the way candidates conduct themselves affects the perception the public has of all students across Worcester
